Ski train hits car at crossing

By MICHAEL DANIELS

"I think I can, I think I can, I think I can," thought a Yarmouth man Friday night.

But he couldn't.

Ignoring loud blasts from the train whistle, David White attempted to race his car through a crossing ahead of the oncoming Sunday River Silver Bullet Express.

He didn't make it.

The ski train caught White's Ford Bronco in the crossing, badly smashing the passenger side and rear of the vehicle.

Fortunately, the train had already been slowing for an upcoming stop, and White escaped without injury.

Neither were any of the train crew or passengers injured. "Most of the passengers didn't even know it had happened," said Tom Richardson, Sunday River's VP of finance and marketing.

After a half hour delay, the train moved on and took a new Yarmouth track, which was only a half mile long. What should make it to the terminus in Boston, he was advised by the Yarmouth Police, must do so with a stopover under the tracks.

Group targets indirect river pollution

By ALISON ALOISIO

Construction, camping, farming, and forestry-related activities are now the primary causes of pollution in the Androscoggin River watershed in the Bethel area, according to the Androscoggin Pollution Prevention Project.

The team, which is part of the Androscoggin Watershed Pollution Prevention Project, is working to identify and eliminate pollution sources.

Using the Department of Environmental Protection's guidebook, "Your Maine Source," the team compiled a general list of non-point pollution sources, which are not directly discharged into the river and its tributaries.

The list, prepared at a meeting last week, included erosion and runoff from construction sites and forest and farming operations, as well as wood waste from old sawmills, heavy metals from old dump sites, tire dumps, and junked cars.

Flakes finally fly; cold bites deep

By WENDY HANSCOM

Forget about ice-melting spring. The first big snowfall of the season dumped 14-plus inches in the Bethel area Saturday and dragged in behind it a cold-bone-biting Arctic air.

Thermometers dipped to at least 12 below locally Tuesday evening, and more cold weather is on tap for the rest of this week, but no more nor'easters are in the immediate forecast, according to the National Weather Service in Portland.

Saturday's storm dumped 21 to 28 inches of new snow on Sunday River Ski Resort's summit, according to a resort official.

Officials at the weather service report similar accumulations elsewhere in the region.

Storm warnings were posted early Saturday. An Oxford County Sheriff's Office dispatcher said most people seemed to have heeded the warnings and stayed off the roads. There were just a few accidents county-wide, the dispatcher said.

Before the storm hit, people who were worried about bad roads or extended power outages prudently stocked up on supplies.

"Friday at about 2 p.m. it started to take off, and it lasted all evening," said Rod Royer, Bethel Foodliner manager. "Saturday morning was completely chaotic until about 2 p.m. Sunday was dead, because everybody made plans to stay in."

"Batteries, flashlights and candles, all the emergency stuff for a storm, we're pretty much out of," Royer said.

Across the street at Brooks Bros., business was also brisk as customers snapped up candles, lamp oil and shovels.

People also prepared to be penned up by tenting movies, according to video store owner Karen Wright. Both of Wright's Bethel stores rented more than the average number of tapes Saturday, she said.

High winds accompanying the storm didn't succeed in knocking out local electrical power.

But while the snow was fresh and deep on all of Sunday River's trails Sunday morning, many of those trails were inaccessible to the skiers who braved the blizzard to show up -- because high winds had forced the resort to close several of its lifts.

Telstar pipes burst

By WENDY HANSCOM

Pipes burst Monday at the Telstar complex, causing extensive water damage and forcing the cancellation of two days of high- and middle-school classes.

A heating system failure sometime Sunday is being blamed for water and steam damage to five classrooms. Pipes burst in six to eight other rooms, but no water damage resulted.

A damage estimate wasn't available Tuesday. Some ceiling and floor tiles will need replacing, according to Superintendent Ron Jenkins, and several typewriters and computers in the business education room were damaged by water and steam.

The pipes began leaking shortly after students arrived for classes Monday. High and middle schools students were sent home for the day, Jenkins said.

With the legislature in session, lobbyists are buttonholing legislators on the third floor of the state house about bills. Their amiable talking and joking is just one way they influence which bills pass and which die quietly in committee.

Lobbyists have power because they have information. Bank lobbyists, for example, understand banking law far better than most legislators. So legislators, with no personal staff, rely on lobbyists for information.

Campaign contributions are another key source of lobbyists' power. Major lobbying groups, like the doctor's lobby, the Maine Medical Association, and the business lobby, the Maine Chamber of Commerce, contribute thousands of dollars to legislative candidates.

Lobby groups hand out contributions carefully. They interview candidates, examine their voting records and ask them to complete questionnaires. Only when they are confident a candidate agrees with their views, do they write a check. And by paying for campaign literature and newspaper and radio ads, those checks can decide a close election.

Contributions do not necessarily buy a legislator's votes, but they are indicators of their views. A state representative who received $400 from Boise Cascade is unlikely to lead the fight to repeal tax break for the paper industry. And like all gifts, contributions make a bond between the giver and the receiver that can be helpful when key legislation is being considered.

Groups which represent businesses and professionals make the most contributions. A handful of Maine unions also contribute. Lobby groups generally support incumbents because they have proven records, are likely to win reelection and have more influence in August than freshman legislators.

The Citizen examined the area legislators' 1994 campaign finance reports. All candidates are required to report their expenses and contributions greater than $50. Not surprisingly, our review shows that running for state Representative is much cheaper than running for state

AND NOW IT'S 538 AND COUNTING

Employees of P.H. Chabourne Co. have racked up an impressive record of 538 (as of Tuesday) work days without a lost-time accident -- either in the mill or in the woods.

Don Feeney, company safety director, gave much of the credit for the accomplishment to increased safety awareness and education, especially regarding back injuries.

In recognition of the new record (the old record was 285 days) the company's 90 employees were given commemorative sweatshirts and caps.

Low-level overflight plan now on hold

By ALAN MORSE

An official at the Federal Aviation Administration revealed Monday that his agency will put proposed low-level flights for Western Maine on hold.

The 104th Fighter Group of the Massachusetts Air National Guard had requested changes in rules for military training flights operating in the Condor Military Operating Area.

The training zone covers an area marked at its corners by Bethel, the Canadian border, Greenville and Wilton.

The Guard had requested the operating ceiling in the area be reduced from 7,000 to 300 feet to enable low-level training in the terrain-hugging F-16 bomber and drop-zone practice in larger aircraft.

The FAA promised a decision on the proposal in mid-January. The announcement was delayed several times, but finally scheduled for last week.

On Monday, Bill Maloney, manager of the System Management Branch of the FAA in Burlington, Mass., revealed that the release of rules changes would be delayed indefinitely at the request of the Air

PAID TO PLAY IN THE WOODS

To the Editor:

Although a good memory is an asset, it sometimes causes pain. I remember very vividly the 30's depression. We were poor dirt farmers after losing all our animals through disease. There were six of us, but because of pride, my father refused to walk a mere mile to FDR's CCC camps to join the hundreds of able men getting paid to just sit around the fire. (I remember them well.)

My memory was jogged when I saw your picture of three girls carrying a log, captioned "Young AmeriCorp." After reading Wendy Hanscom's article, I decided to drive to Bog Brook the next morning. Is there a depression going on?

I met with the director, Brian Yenton, a courteous young man, and sat down to hear about the program I'm paying for. They have 32 kids costing over $20,000 per year, plus Brian and seven supervisors who he said make more money.

Part of their job, I was told, is to increase all of our wildlife. Now I am really interested and inquired as to how they do that! "We clean out the brush and dead wood to help the smaller animals and nesting birds." Gee, I thought, I have been hunting in the wrong places.

And the deer? "We provide more food by clearing the forest allowing new growth. They can't eat the pine trees, you know. There used to be more forest fires years ago to help them."

That darn Smoke the Bear! And those Indians were certainly careless with their fires.

What do you do when the snow is three feet deep? "We use snowshoes and at times we stay in and sharpen our chainsaws and axes, waiting for spring break." I could picture an 18-year-old doing just that.

I left this nice fellow and decided to visit your reporter who investigated the AmeriCorp program.

Brian had also told me that they make trails through the wilderness for recreation. I did not want to embarrass him by asking how all the animals must really thrive on seeing more and more people and snowmobiles in their unspoiled woodland.

Wendy was very gracious. I found that she is very intelligent, as probably the kids are at camp, except she is gainfully employed. After explaining some of my concerns she encouraged me to write. Normally I would just stay in my own bush thinking that we have over 25,000 in AmeriCorps getting paid for this.

A couple of weeks ago, the Times, refuting the GOP mandate on less regulation and spending, claimed that Clinton had a "deeper" answer to steering public and private spending toward productivity-enhancing investment, "training and education." In a recent speech to the students at Carl Sandburg College, Mr. Clinton stated: "We ought to just give it to the money." Programs and dollars mean votes!

FBI's member, John Keynes, the British economist wrote in 1933, "How much government spending on public works" would mean not only to the material prosperity of the U.S. and the whole world, but in contrast to the mind of man, through a restoration of their faith in the wisdom and virtue of government."

It is past time to look at how many will be left to pull the wagon.

Sincerely,
Gordon

NEW AGE BELIEFS UNMASKED

To the Editor:

After reading the article on "Indian Patents" in your Jan. 29 issue, I felt a great urgency to share some basic truths of what "New Age" is all about.

In my personal, finite God, New Age, in considering God to be the sum and all-encompassing, have abandoned the truth of God for a finite, twinged and created thing, higher than the created things.

The New Age person - God is a created person who is finite and has finite limitations. Finite in creation and the ability to change, finite in God's creation and incapable of creating the universe.

The New Age person - God is not the infinite, all-powerful, all-knowing, all-good, all-loving, all-merciful and all-peaceful God of the Bible.

The New Age person - God is not the God of the Ten Commandments.

The New Age person - God is not the God of the Ten Commandments.

The New Age person - God is not the God of the Ten Commandments.

Briefly

Former Bethel man in mine rescue

GREEN RIVER, WYO.--Wayne R. Davis of Green River, Wyo., was part of a Texas Gulf Soda Ash Rescue Team (the first outside team called) in last weekend's Friday-Sunday search for two men trapped in a Green River Basin area mine. The men were trapped 1600 feet underground at the Solvay Minerals' trona mine. The former Bethel man and the team went into the mine after an earthquake destroyed one and one-half miles of shafts at the south end of the mine. Fifty-three men escaped the methane gas-filled area with only contusions and bruises caused by falling rocks. The first of the two missing men was found Saturday night and is recuperating in a local hospital. The second man, a 26-year-old school principal's son, was located Sunday morning, but collapsed while crawling to meet the rescuers and died several hours later at nearby hospital. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis of Bethel.

Ambulance meeting postponed

ALBANY--A public meeting scheduled for Sunday regarding ambulance service for Albany and Mason townships has been postponed until Feb. 12 at 2 p.m. at the Albany Town Hall. The meeting is to discuss a petition to reinstate the Stoneham and Bethel rescue services in Albany and Mason. Oxford County Commissioners voted on Jan. 17 to have PACE Ambulance Service of Norway take over coverage in the townships.

Road chief wants new truck

GREENWOOD--Road commissioner Alan Seames will ask Town Meeting voters to consider purchasing a new one-ton dump truck, equipped with a nine-foot Fisher plow. The truck would cost $30,714. Seames said he would use it for plowing, hauling gravel, cold-patching potholes and rock breaking. The new truck would replace one that is 16 years old.

Gill pleads innocent, wants bail cut

SOUTH PARIS--Charles Gill, 58, who is charged with practicing psychology without a license pleaded innocent Monday to 17 counts against him. He is charged with 16 counts of unlawful practice of psychology, a misdemeanor, and one count of theft by deception, a felony. Gill's attorney, John Jenness, said Gill had never represented himself as a "psychiatrist" and had provided service to the Bethel Area Health Center, which employed him. Jenness asked that the $150,000 bail be reduced, and Superior Court Justice Thomas E. Delahanty set bail at $50,000 single or $25,000 double surety, or $12,500 cash.

Lawmakers to debate Sunday hunting

AUGUSTA--A bill to allow Sunday hunting in Maine will be debated by lawmakers this year. George Smith, executive director of the 14,000-member Sportsman's Alliance of Maine, said the legislative debate will be divisive, and Maine hunters are also divided on the issue. "As an organization, we support general hunting on Sunday," Smith said, "but we don't have any chance (such a bill will gain lawmaker approval). But the bill's sponsor, Rep. John Underwood, R-Oxford, thinks the proposal has a "fair chance." Underwood submitted the bill at the request of some members of the Lake Thompson Fish and Game Club, he said.

Maine Sens. protect their own salaries

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Maine Sens. Olympia Snowe and William Cohen joined the majority last week in voting to kill a proposal to include representatives' and senators' pay in across-the-board cuts to spending programs. The Maine senators voted to exempt their own salaries from any government spending cuts.

Stats say Maine is a safe place

Recently released statistics show Maine is still one of the safest states in the country. Maine was fourth from the bottom on a list of states' murder rates calculated by the Population Research Bureau. Only New Hampshire, North Dakota and Iowa had lower figures. "It's not a surprise at all," said Maine Public Safety spokesman Stephen McCausland. "We are typically in the bottom five as far as homicides and overall safety. In the national perspective, it just goes to show that Maine is an extremely safe state to live in. It has been and will continue to be." The District of Columbia topped the list with a murder rate of 66.5 per 100,000 people. Maine's murder rate was 2.4.

5-year-old brings gun to school

WASHINGTON--Police took a 5-year-old Maryland boy into custody last week after he brought a loaded semi-automatic handgun to his elementary school and showed it off to classmates. A teacher at the school confiscated the .38-caliber weapon. The boy was showing it to a group of students in the back of the classroom. The teacher told police the boy took the gun from his mother's dresser drawer. The mother was charged with two counts of allowing a minor access to firearms. If convicted she faces a $1,000 fine for the misdemeanor charges.

Rabid fox killed in Lisbon

LISBON--A fox shot on King Road in Lisbon last Wednesday was rabid, according to the Maine Department of Human Services. A dog that had been in contact with the fox bit a 12-year-old Lisbon boy Thursday. After the attack the dog was euthanized by its owners. It will also be tested for rabies. The dog did have a current rabies immunization. The fox had been seen acting strangely near the Town and Country Trailer Park. Officials believe the fox may have exposed several cats, dogs, porcupine and skunk to rabies. Lisbon pet owners have been advised to watch their animals closely for signs of unusual actions.

From the Bethel Police log:

Road warrior plays dodg'ems

On Feb. 1 at 4:53 p.m., a Gorham, N.H. man told police he'd been rear-ended by another car. The man told police he'd been traveling on Route 2 in West Bethel when he saw a car behind him tailgating. The man said he hit his brakes causing the vehicle behind him to hit him. When the car behind did not pull over after striking his vehicle, the man decided to pursue the vehicle and "run it off the road." The New Hampshire man rammed the other vehicle in the side, but the driver still did not pull over. Police told the man his actions in the incident were unwarranted and illegal. The man was annoyed at the police response, according to the report, and "saw no problem with his actions." Police warned him they would contact the owner of the other vehicle (the New Hampshire man had the license number) and ask if he wanted to press charges for reckless conduct with a motor vehicle. Damage to the New Hampshire man's car was estimated at $200 from the rear-ending, and $500 to the front fender from "ramming" the other car.

Tuesday, Feb. 7

At 11 a.m., PACE ambulance reported hitting debris on Route 2, resulting in a flat tire. Police checked the roadway, but found nothing.

Sunday, Feb. 5

At 2 p.m., Arthur B. Bonsat of West Bethel was summoned for illegal attachment of license plate and displaying an invalid inspection sticker.

Saturday evening several vehicles in the Bethel village were towed, because they were in violation of the parking ban.

Saturday, Feb. 4

At 3:11 p.m., a Chase Road woman reported that someone had forced open a door to her trailer. All the pipes and wires in the residence were cut, the woman was unsure if anything had been taken.

At 5:40 p.m., a Mayville Road resident told police someone had tried to break into a home on the Sunday River Crossroad. The outside door was kicked in, the report said. Would-be burglars did not gain entrance because the inside door was chained.

At 7:55 p.m., a Paradise Road woman reported a vehicle with an apparently intoxicated driver had just gone off the road and onto her lawn. Police checked the area but did not locate the vehicle.

Senate, primarily because Senate districts are more than four times as large as House districts.

Below is a list of our area legislators' major contributors.

To avoid confusion, contributions from political action committees (PACs) are listed under their sponsoring organization. Some groups create feel-good names for their PACs. The Maine Trial Lawyers Association's PAC, for instance, is named "Citizens for Justice in Maine," and International Paper Co.'s PAC is dubbed "Voluntary Contributors for Better Government."

Senate

Hanover Republican Norman Ferguson spent $17,653. (Ferguson's district, No. 24, includes most of The Citizen's circulation area.)

Like Hanley, Ferguson received strong financial support from business. His largest contributors were the Professional Independent Insurance Agents of Maine ($1,050), Sunday River Ski Resort ($1,000), Oxford Speedway owner Robert Bahre ($1,000), and the Maine Chamber of Commerce ($1,000). He also received $500 each from Boise Cascade Co. and International Paper Co.

Other local businessmen and companies who backed Ferguson were Bethel lumber mill owner Robert Chadbourne ($500), John Schiavi of Oxford ($500), South Paris auto dealer Kenneth Kilgore ($500), C.N. Brown oil company ($500), Norway restaurant owner Al LeClerc ($200), Bancroft Contracting ($200), United Timber Corp. of Dixfield ($300), West Paris retailer James Blaisdell ($200), and Rumford contractor William Porter ($200).

Others who made large contributions were Portland businessman Robert and Millicent Monks ($500), Bethel sand and gravel businessman Dennis Wilson ($500), the Maine Oil Dealers Association ($250), the Franchising PAC ($200), the Maine Medical Association ($200), the Maine Hospital Association ($200), and the Maine Motor Transport Association, a trucking company group ($250).

Ferguson also received contributions from the Maine Credit Union League ($150), the Maine Bankers Association ($100), the Merrill Company of Bethel ($100), Phillip Morris tobacco company ($100), and Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Maine ($100).

Paris Republican Dana Hanley spent $22,273. (Hanley's District, No. 70, includes West Paris.)

Dana Hanley won a second term in the Senate with strong local and state business support. Norway Advertiser-Democrat publisher Howard James gave Hanley his largest contribution, $1,287 worth of free newspaper advertising. Hanley's other big contributors were the National Rifle Association ($1,000), South Paris shoemaker Bruce & Nancy Hanley ($1,000) and Camden financial services company MBNA ($1,000).

Many other businesses and trade groups backed the conservative Hanley, including the trucking company group, the Maine Motor Transport Association ($850), International Paper Co. ($500), the Manufactured Housing Association of Maine ($500), LeClerc Management of Norway ($500), the Maine Oil Dealers Association ($250), the Maine Association of Community Banks ($200), the Maine Bankers Association ($200), the Franchising PAC ($200), Fleet Bank ($150), and Dunlap Insurance of Auburn ($200).

Health industry groups also made large contributions including the Maine Hospital Association ($300), the Maine Medical Association ($300), the Maine Dental Association ($300), the Maine Osteopathic Association ($300), the Maine Optometric Association ($100), and Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Maine ($100).

Local businessmen were also among Hanley's contributors, including Bridgton insurance agent Bruce Chalmers ($500), Norway pharmacist Larry Keitner ($300), Twin Town Homes president Hayward Luck of Oxford ($200), Oxford Homes president Peter & Karla Connell ($100), Schiavi Enterprises president John Schiavi of Oxford ($400), Sunday River president Leslie Ooten ($500), radio station president Dick Gleason ($300), and C.N. Brown president Harold Jones ($200).

Hanley also received contributions from the Paris Farmers Union ($200), South Paris machine products company S.T.A.D.S. ($250), Al & Mary Alice Bancroft of Paris ($200), and Portland doctor Jeremy Morton ($250).

Hanley also received $225 from the Maine Republican Party, $1000 from the Maine Republican's Senate campaign committee, and $500 from the Oxford County Republican Committee.

House of Representatives

Bethel Republican Alvin Barth spent $3,062. (Barth's district, No. 65, includes much of The Citizen's circulation area.)

Unopposed, Barth received most of his large contributions from local business people. Top donors were Rangeley real estate agent Scott Morton ($200), and Susan Konkel of Portland ($500).

Each of the following people gave $100 to Barth's successful campaign for a third term: Rangeley Inn owner Fay Carpenter, Bethel dairy farmer Warren Hastings, Ellen Whitney of Bethel's Maine Line Products, Leon Favreau of Bethel Furniture Stock, Rangeley real estate agent Sheldon Noyes, Bethel sand & gravel businessman Dennis Wilson, Harold and Joyce Jones of Norway, Sunday River president Leslie Ooten, Bethel Inn owner Richard Rason, Sunday River Inn owners Steve and Peggy Wight, West Paris mill owner Richard Penley, John Robinson of Oxford's Robinson Manufacturing, and Bethel lumber mill owner Robert Chadbourne.

Barth also received $100 from the Maine Real Estate Managers Association and the Ski Maine Association and $50 from Bowater paper company.

Rumford Republican Robert Cameron spent $9,092. (Cameron's district, No. 70, includes Woodstock and Milton Township.)

Cameron won a second term by defeating seven-term Democrat Phyllis Erwin by just 207 votes.

Cameron, who outspent Erwin by $2,700, received contributions from local business people, three paper companies and Republican Party groups.

His largest contributors were the Maine Republican Party ($600), Portland businessman Robert Monks and his wife Millicent ($500), and the Oxford County Republican Committee ($400).

Cameron also received $250 from International Paper Co., $200 from Scott Paper Co., $100 from Georgia Pacific Corp., and $250 from the Maine Chamber of Commerce.

Local contributors of $100 each were Rumford Center farmer David Kimball, Blaisdell's Variety of West Peru, Bethel sawmill owner Robert Chadbourne, the Rumford Cogeneration Co., Bartash Inc. of Rumford, Mrs. Carlton Champe of Rumford Center, Rumford contractor Paul Bolduc, Adley Auto Sales, Thomas Dickson of Rumford Center, and Bethel legislator Alvin Barth.

Cameron also received contributions from Rumford Center computer programmer Tom Powell ($200), Norway McDonald's owner Al LeClerc ($200), the Maine Pharmacy Association ($100), the Ski Maine Association ($100), American Frozen Foods Inc. of Connecticut ($100). Cameron also received $200 each from the campaigns of two fellow Republican representatives, Robert Spear of Nobleboro and James Donnelly of Presque Isle.

Norway Republican Tom Winsor spent $3,992. (Winsor's district, No. 68, includes Greenwood and West Paris.)

Winsor received his largest contributions from Portland businessman Robert Monks ($300), International Paper Co. ($250), the Maine Chamber of Commerce ($250), Boise Cascade ($200), Norway radio station owner Richard Gleason ($200), and Tania Hannon of California ($200).

He also received $200 from the Oxford County Republican Committee, $175 from the Hannibal Hamlin Republican Women's Club, and $100 from the Maine Republican Party.

Other contributors of $100 were Hayward Luck of Oxford, Peter Cornell of Norway, Richard Penley of West Paris, Daniel Craftee of Bridgton and Waterford contractor Steven Brown.

Winsor also received $150 from the Maine Oil Dealers Association, $100 from Eastport real estate broker Peter Leighton, and $108 of design work from the Oxford Group.

Wednesday, the 8th, is the 2nd annual "Sugar-Free" Day. Community members are urged to eat healthy foods and avoid sugary snacks and candy for the day.

The American Dental Society recommends a diet of natural foods and fresh fruit for healthy teeth and gums.

The APT will meet Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 2:30 p.m. at the school. The fifth/sixth-grade basketball team is hosting the CPS team for a game at 5:30 Wednesday evening.

A box social will be held at the AHS on Saturday, the 11, at 6:30 p.m. in the cafeteria. Couples or pairs are invited to bring a picnic to be auctioned off to the highest bidder. You will dine with background music from the Big Band Era on linon-covered tables, surrounded by whale lights -- sounds like a neat dinner out!

Congratulations to Lacey Gammon, Student of the Week, at AES, Jan. 23/27. Lacey is a second-grader.

The Snow Valley Sno-Goers are sponsoring a Polka Run on Saturday, Feb. 11. Registration will be held at the warming hut on I.T.S. 82 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Polka Run will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Notes from the Historical Society curator, Larry Billings: The owner of Mt. Mann's

Minerals in Bethel gave the society a very nice book on tourmaline. Much thanks. The society notes that author Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote of what he called "antique gentility." What a nice way to describe old ways and things. The society finds significant information to share with its members and the public. The next meeting will be on Sunday, Feb. 12.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Harriet Stowell.

Because of the storm, the 50th wedding anniversary open house for Floyd and Angie Keniston will be held Feb. 11 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Keniston home in Bryant Pond.

There will be no Daughters of Veterans meeting in February. The next meeting will be March 13.

The Woodstock Extension Group will meet Feb. 15 at Barbara Hathaway's with a potluck lunch and meeting at 10:30.

Steve Seames recently sent a certificate to the Historical Society. The society is an organization dealing with many subjects of interest to the public as a whole. The society's general meetings can be interesting; many family members have traced their family history has returned home from Stephens Memorial Hospital.

Several people in town have traded cars recently.

To you readers who wear eye glasses -- Do your glasses fog up when you come in from the cold outdoors? Try this: When you open the door, turn around and come in backwards, and your glasses won't fog up. Try it -- it works. And if you missed my little money-saving bit of last year, try this: Use the mesh bag that your oranges or onions come in, just strip off the metal ends and use the mesh bag for a good scour pad.

Charles Fillebrown will be operating a new building and contracting company in East Stoneham, and it will be called CAF III Bldg. and Contracting.

We were sorry to learn of the passing of another friend of ours from Lovell -- Bob Littlefield. Our prayers and thoughts are with his wife Gladys and their family.

To you readers who wear eye glasses -- Do your glasses fog up when you come in from the cold outdoors? Try this: When you open the door, turn around and come in backwards, and your glasses won't fog up. Try it -- it works. And if you missed my little money-saving bit of last year, try this: Use the mesh bag that your oranges or onions come in, just strip off the metal ends and use the mesh bag for a good scour pad.

Charles Fillebrown will be operating a new building and contracting company in East Stoneham, and it will be called CAF III Bldg. and Contracting.

We were sorry to learn of the passing of another friend of ours from Lovell -- Bob Littlefield. Our prayers and thoughts are with his wife Gladys and their family.

Several people in town have traded cars recently.

Gilead

Tony's friend, Tara Lunney along, Julie, Jenni and J.J. Whitman joined us also.

Saturday, I had a phone call from Kelly Cole in Anchorage, Alaska. Kelly reports that she's doing fine. She keeps busy between her Air Force job, cleaning jobs, house-sitting jobs and babysitting. Where does she find the time? It was great to hear from her. It was warmer in Alaska than it was in Maine the day we talked.

Our condolences to the family of Ellen Amadon, who passed away last week. Ellen lived in Gilead for many years before she fell ill.

That's all for this week! Please call me with your news, folks -- my news gets boring! Have a great week!

North Newry

by Gil Seeley

"Correction" -- Last week I said that Julia Goodwin of Belfast celebrated her 87th birthday...wrong, it was her 86th birthday. I am the one who is 87. Ha!

No snow...so no Sno-Mobile oyster stew for the 11th. It is postponed till further notice. So said the Windy Wings Sno-Mobile Club, see you later.

The Newry Mothers Club will meet Monday, Feb. 13, at 7:30 p.m. with a Valentine exchange. The snack committee will be Karlene, Olive and Gil.

The "Newry Bowling Gang" members who went to the Oxford Lanes, Rumford, last week were: Betsy Clark, Karlene Baehler, Gil Seeley, Sylvia Wight, Olive Anderson, and Jane, Rena Powers and Jim Anderson were guests. Betsy was high on the overall scores and Sylvia was high on the triples and singles of the "Eighties." Betsy had four spares. Karlene had two spares. Gil had one strike, and Olive had two spares. All went to lunch and did some shopping.

High Street

West Paris

by Russell Yates

Howdy, folks.

This is Tuesday,

the last day of

January, and it looks like we might be in for another nice day.

It certainly is unusual to have all this nice weather and so little snow, but I for one am not complaining.

I'd like to report that sister Peggy is gaining each day and has made a big improvement in the last week. Thanks again to all you good people out there for the phone calls and the get well cards. They all help when one is sick.

Last Tuesday, we enjoyed a visit by Barbara Yates from Sunday

River. She gave Peggy a good "reflexology" treatment to help ease her aches and pains. She stayed to dinner and part of the afternoon.

I put out more food for the birds and squirrels, but it isn't disappearing very fast as we don't seem to have much for birds around right now. With so little snow, I guess they must be getting enough food in the wild.

I've already received several birthday cards, and I don't need to be reminded that I'm a year older tomorrow. I was born in February, along with all those other famous people like George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. A sister and a brother of mine were also born in February. With all the fighting between the Democrats and Republicans, I certainly wouldn't want the job of being the president of the United States. A lot more could be accomplished if they would make an effort to work together instead of cutting each other down.

Bryce and Barbara Yates of Sunday River visited us Thursday afternoon.

Friday afternoon, Peggy's daughter, Loretta Merrill of West Bethel, needed tests done at the hospital in Norway, so she took me along so that I could get some groceries and take care of other errands.

Peggy got calls from her daughters, Myrna White of Mesa, Ariz., and Kaye Blossey of Eustis, Fla., on Saturday morning. It was a cold 42 degrees in Mesa that morning. Myrna and husband were getting ready to go Jeeping.

Sunday afternoon, Peggy decided to try driving her car again, after being sick for so long. We went down to the Ames' Department Store, where we bought us an exercise bike so that we could do some much needed exercise in the comfort of our living room.

Bertha Benoit visited us after we returned home. She stayed for a light supper of tomato bisque, which I had been appointed to make.

Callers at the Lovejoys have been Harold Dingman from Lewiston and Marsha Baxter from Oxford.

Saturday, the Lovejoys picked up his aunt, Helena Bartlett, at the Bethel House. They did some shopping and then ended up at the home of Eleanor Emmons, on the Harrison Road, to help celebrate her 86th birthday. Eleanor and Helena are sisters and don't get together very often.

Faith Lovejoy attended a birthday party for Amanda Herrick of Norway on Saturday.

The children from the Mission Congo Church enjoyed a sliding and skating party last Saturday.

There will be dances at West Paris Grange Hall on Feb. 4, 11, and 18, with music by the Richard Felt Orchestra.

Oxford Pomona Grange will meet at Oxford Grange Hall on Feb. 7.

There will be a 6:30 supper preceding the meeting. The new password will be used.

UNITED METHODIST WOMEN

Bethel United Methodist Women met on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 2, at the church dining room. The meeting was opened by president Virginia Keniston, who led members in repeating the Lord's Prayer. The secretary/treasurer gave reports, which were accepted as read. Thank yous were received from Evelyn Reed and Don and Arlene Brown.

Sarah Stevens, representing the Sunshine Committee, stated that cards had been sent to Jane Young, Georgia Brooks, Kenneth Brooks, Betty Ann Hastings, Gailey Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Hanscom, Kelly Bean, Jackie Schlesier and Harold Powell. Twenty-five sick calls were reported. Sarah also had recently talked with Jane Gamble and had learned that the family was getting along well, although Jane is facing a long recuperation period.

A collection of $6.65 was taken, four members paid their annual dues, and several brought in their World Bank money. Others may bring their donations to the next meeting.

Programs for the following year were distributed, as was the 1995 prayer list. Those not in attendance will receive their lists in the mail. Following discussion concerning the summer sale, it was voted to hold it Friday and Saturday, July 14 and 15.

Following the business session, 15 members and four guests enjoyed a presentation by Mary Ann Lord, who is working with Wycliffe Bible Translators in Peru, South America. These missionaries are working with natives in the Peruvian jungles and are in the process of translating the New Testament into a written language. Her exhibit and slide lecture were very interesting and enlightening. Mary Ann was assisted by her mother, Muriel Lord. They also brought news of Jane and Harriet Kneeland, formerly of Bethel. Harriet is also with Wycliffe and has been on a team which recently completed Bible translations for natives of a different language in another part of Peru.

Refreshments were served by Ginny Keniston and Sarah Stevens. The next meeting will be March 2, hosted by Lyndell Carter and Ethel Ward.

DIXFIELD ALUMNI SOUGHT

The Dixfield Alumni Association is asking for updated addresses of former classmates. The children from the Mission Congo Church enjoyed a sliding and skating party last Saturday.

There will be dances at West Paris Grange Hall on Feb. 4, 11, and 18, with music by the Richard Felt Orchestra.

Oxford Pomona Grange will meet at Oxford Grange Hall on Feb. 7. There will be a 6:30 supper preceding the meeting. The new password will be used.

The Alumni Association would like to have the addresses so that former classmates can be invited to the annual banquet on June 17, according to Cynthia Lane, alumni secretary.

Addresses can be sent to the Dixfield Alumni Association, P.O. Box 359, Dixfield, Maine, 04224; or to Cynthia Lane, 46 Pine Street, Dixfield, Maine, 04224.

Pipes

than three hours Monday to stop all the leaks, Jenkins said. Monday evening another pipe in the industrial arts room started leaking, he said, but workers quickly contained it.

Work crews were still mopping up Tuesday, and students were kept home again.

Because the district's elementary students attended classes, Jenkins said, it's unlikely Telstar students will have to make up the missed time.

The timing of the pipe breaks was fortunate, Jenkins said.

"If there had been no one here when the leaking started then there probably would have been two or three inches on the floor," he said. Water was not pouring out of pipes, he said, but leaking steadily.

Teachers were able to get books and other classroom materials out of wet classrooms before they got soaked, Jenkins said.

"They went above and beyond the call of duty today," Jenkins said Monday. "There were a lot of people who were really quite wet."

Because of an apparent computer failure, the heating system problem went undetected until Monday morning.

The school has a computerized watch on the heating system, installed by the Honeywell Corp. of South Portland, Jenkins said. It appears a heat circulator malfunctioned, he said.

"We believe there was a heat sensor that was supposed to send a message to the computer that the temperature was less than it was should be," Jenkins said. "It should have called Honeywell, who would notify us in return, but that didn't happen."

Honeywell workers have been at the school since Monday morning helping repair the system.

The school has insurance, and adjusters were scheduled to be at the school Tuesday afternoon.

It's also possible Honeywell will be held responsible for some of the damages, Jenkins said.

The damaged computers and typewriters were scheduled to be removed Tuesday afternoon and evaluated for damage. Jenkins estimated that about a dozen computers and six typewriters had been damaged by steam.

Heat had been restored to 90 percent of the building by Tuesday morning, Jenkins said.

He predicted the rest of the building would have heat by Tuesday afternoon, but as of press time Tuesday, he was unable to say if school would be in session Wednesday.

books was cited as a common erosion problem in the area.

DEP Environmental Specialist and team leader Jim Jones said one role of the team might be to educate loggers about DEP regulations on cutting near waterways. Although fertilizer runoff from farming operations was also mentioned by team members, Jones said that individual homeowners may cause more problems than commercial farmers.

"The large farming operations test their soil. They only use as much fertilizer as their plants can utilize. Most homeowners don't test -- they just go to the hardware store and get fertilizer," he said.

Jones said education was again the key to solving the problem.

Team members saw runoff and erosion from home construction sites as another concern, and decided to look into having a DEP pamphlet on erosion control distributed with Bethel area building permits.

The subject of direct pollution sources was also discussed, with team members saying that what there might be was insignificant. It was noted that the two treatment plants in the area were in good working order and were not a pollution concern.

Jones said that at its April 6 meeting the team will look at the pollution causes in more detail, assess the risk of each, and prioritize the ones on which it will work.

Team members include Jones, Robert Gundersen of the Bethel Water District, David Bartlett of Sunday River Ski Resort, and Walter Hatch, Richard Hoel, Tom Remington and Eric Schwarz of the Friends of the Androscoggin conservation/recruitment organization.

National Guard.

According to Maloney, officials were holding discussions in Washington, D.C., on Monday about the "needs and mission" of the Massachusetts Air National Guard 104th Fighter Group, the unit which trains over Western Maine.

Maloney would not speculate on changes which might result from the discussions.

He said the Air National Guard may withdraw the request completely or may come back to the FAA with alterations to the proposal.

Maloney said it was unlikely that the FAA would hold more hearings if the proposal changes, since that hearing process is optional, but he suggested radical changes in the Air National Guard proposal might necessitate a new environmental impact statement and hearings.

SMALL BUSINESS SEMINAR

Community Concepts' Micro Enterprise Center will present a free workshop, "Starting Your Own Home-Based or Small Business," on Wednesday, Feb. 15, 9 a.m. to noon, at the Bethel Inn Gibson Room.

Participants will learn what it takes to start a successfully small business; whether you have what it takes to be a successful small business owner; how to clarify your business idea; and the basics of a business plan including marketing.

Walter J. Riesman, business specialist for Community Concepts' Micro Enterprise Center, said, "It is good time to become informed of the possibilities and realities of operating a small business. The Bethel area is full of talented people and the Bethel area is ripe for entrepreneurs. People in the western mountains are creating high quality crafts, Maine-made specialty foods, fine arts, and innovative services. From my perspective, working throughout western Maine, Bethel is the spot to start a business."

Community Concepts is a private, nonprofit community action agency with a mission to "help people in need build opportunities for a better tomorrow." The Micro-Enterprise Center offers to home-based, self-employed or family-owned business owners small business loans, workshops, technical assistance, and resource information.

Information and registration: 743-7176. Walk-ins are also welcome.

AMC advises:*Be prepared if you're going outdoors in the winter

Being safe in the outdoors in winter means being prepared for harsh, often life-threatening weather for which the season is noted.

The Northeast's icy cliffs and snowy slopes lure ice climbers, snowshoers, and winter hikers to the backcountry during even the coldest months. While serious mishaps are infrequent, the dangers posed by exposure to the elements are real as evidenced by last winter's three cold-weather-related deaths in New Hampshire's Presidential Range.

But injury can often be prevented with proper preparation, according to the outdoor recreation specialists at the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC).

"Think of your backpack as your survival kit," says Rob Burbank, public information coordinator for the AMC, a nonprofit conservation and recreation organization with more than 64,000 members.

"Any time you venture into the backcountry, you should wear or carry clothing that will keep you warm and dry," advises Burbank. "This will help you avoid hypothermia, which is the lowering of your body's core temperature. Left untreated, hypothermia can lead to death in a very short time," he cautions.

Items that every hiker should wear or carry when venturing into the backcountry in winter include plenty of extra warm clothes, such as wool sweaters or synthetic pile jackets and pants; a wool or synthetic pile hat that covers the ears; mittens; wind and rain gear; a bandanna; extra wool socks; polypropylene underwear, and waterproof, insulated boots. Other necessary items include a first aid kit; knife; whistle; guidebook, map and compass; waterproof matches, high-energy snacks; flashlight or headlamp with extra batteries; and two large, plastic trash bags to be used as emergency shelter.

The AMC also advises winter hikers to carry a winter-weight sleeping bag, one rated to zero degrees Fahrenheit or colder. Even if you don't intend to be out overnight, a warm, dry sleeping bag can be a lifesaver if you are lost or stranded.

Water, carried in an insulated container, is essential to preventing dehydration and guarding against hypothermia. The AMC recommends that you drink from two to four quarts of water per day.

Recognizing Hypothermia

The AMC participates in an average of 70 search and rescue missions each year, many of them involving cold injuries. "Virtually all cases of hypothermia or frostbite can be avoided if one is properly outfitted for cold weather, and both can be treated if symptoms are recognized promptly," says Bill Aughton, the AMC's Search and Rescue coordinator.

With hypothermia, the body loses heat faster than it can produce it. Exposure to cold, wind and moisture strains the body's energy reserves and leads to a lowering of the body's core temperature. In the early stages of hypothermia, a victim begins to lose coordination and the ability to make sound judgments. Further exposure leads to irrational behavior, staggering, falling, unconsciousness, and, ultimately, death.

"Hypothermia is easily avoided by wearing clothes that block the wind and keep you warm and dry," notes Aughton. "Trail mix, fruit, and other snacks should be eaten frequently to replenish energy," he advises. "In addition, dehydration speeds hypothermia, so it is essential to drink plenty of water."

If you recognize hypothermia in a member of your party, move the victim to shelter, remove wet clothes, and replace them with warm, dry garments. Try to keep the victim awake and feed him or her high-energy foods and warm liquids containing sugar, providing he or she is alert enough to hold the cup unaided. "Remember," Aughton says, "do not give anything by mouth to a person who is not fully conscious -- they'll choke."

Next, place the person in a pre-warmed sleeping bag to help speed rewarming. If the victim is unconscious, get him or her into some form of shelter and seek medical help immediately.

Treating Frostbite

Frostbite occurs when flesh is frozen. Aughton cautions that tissue damage can be severe if the condition is not treated promptly, and damage can worsen as a result of inappropriate treatment.

Frostbite may affect the skin, muscle, tendons, and, in severe cases, the bone. In minor cases, sometimes referred to as "frostnip," the affected skin may appear white and waxy and feel firm, but resiliency.

If hands or feet are affected, rewarm them by placing them in armpits or crotch. "Most importantly," says Aughton, "do not rub frostbite. The old, misguided folk remedy that advocates rubbing snow on affected areas is a dangerous practice that will worsen tissue damage," he said.

In most severe cases of frostbite, the skin may appear gray, and the tissue beneath the skin may lose its resiliency and feel hard to the touch. In such cases, the victim should be promptly moved to a medical facility where the affected area can be carefully rewarmed under controlled conditions.

Prevention is the best defense against cold injuries, and the best prevention is to dress warmly and to stay dry. When venturing into the cold, one should dress in layers. This method helps to trap body heat and also makes it easy to cool down by removing layers. "Start with a base of long underwear made of polypropylene," said Aughton. "Cotton is not recommended because it holds moisture from perspiration next to the skin."

Wool or synthetic fleece shirts and sweaters are good insulating layers. These should be covered by a waterproof and windproof shell. In very cold weather, an insulated parka is a great addition. Gloves or mittens and warm, wool socks are essential components of any winter wardrobe.

A hat, too, is one of the more important items of clothing. More than 50 percent of body heat is lost through the head.

Comedian Robert Post at Gould

The Gould Academy Performing Arts Series will present a one-man performance by visual and verbal comedian Robert Post on Thursday, Feb. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Bingham Auditorium. Billed as "an off-the-wall evening of movement theatre," the show consists of several short sketches in which Post portrays a wide variety of characters, from Ace Wingspan, a fearless stunt pilot who takes us on an aerial joyride, to Marcia, a gifted adolescent ballerina, to Inspector Wesley Bloom of Scotland Yard.

Post blends dialects, sound effects, props, sets, and naturalistic acting with this trademark physical style of "body graphics." His arms, hands and elastic body transform into constantly changing imagery, overtaking the imagination, creating a new style of visual and verbal comedy. The glue that holds these diverse talents together is an engaging, honest, and relaxed performance style which guarantees Post's instantaneous rapport with his audience.

According to Post, two major influences sparked his childhood desire to go into show business: the sight of his grandmother spontaneously singing and dancing at any family occasion (including funerals), and the classic vaudeville, juggling, and specialty acts featured on the Ed Sullivan show in the 60s. As a student at Ohio State University, he began to study Absurdist Literature because, he said, he liked the sound of "absurd." The major force in his writing over the past 15 years has been his mentor and director, Tony Montenaro.

The key to Post's easy rapport with audiences is his informal style and the running dialogue in which he engages them between sketches. "Three or four times during the show, I'll come out and ramble. I'll talk about what I'm doing this week," he says.

Although Post's performance is hilariously absurd, there are moments of gravity, when the audience glimpses his more serious, socially conscious side. "I don't want to just be funny," he says. "I want to leave the audience with something to remember. I find it interesting to challenge the audience."

"My show is a dialogue with the audience. If they don't know what's going on, I'm in trouble... I want to have fun with the audience, and I want to weave in my personal feelings. I have a show that I feel reflects my views. I'm putting it all out on the line."

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students and are available at the door the evening of the show. Information: 824-7700.
